

How buyers abroad find, check and choose Royal Kingdom Estate

Your buyers rate you highly. But when someone in Atlanta or London asks an AI assistant who to trust with land in Ghana, you're not on the list, and when they check your name, the story they read isn't yours.

Buyers ask AI first, and lose you at three points

A buyer abroad rarely starts on your website. They ask ChatGPT, Gemini or Google "who can I trust?", get a shortlist of three to six names, check each one, and only then send a WhatsApp.

Leads = buyers asking × share who see you on the shortlist × share who trust what they find

Your US tour, Instagram (16K followers) and blog all create buyers at step 1. Fixing steps 2 and 3 multiplies everything you already spend on marketing.

Your buyers say one thing. AI tells new buyers another.

What your buyers say

"...our experience was nothing but positive from beginning to end. As foreigners from Canada, we were warned many times about the risks of buying land in..." (Google review)

A BUYER ASKS CHATGPT (WITH WEB SEARCH)

I'm thinking of buying from Royal Kingdom Estate. Any complaints or red flags I should know about?

"...I found some meaningful caution flags—but not enough evidence to label the company a scam.

A 2024 Accra court case involving land allegedly resold to Royal Kingdom Estate Limited...

Its newer 500-acre Aburi eco-community has received criticism...

A scam-scor[ing site] ..."

The record, which nobody online is telling: in that 2024 case, three individuals were charged with reselling land at Tse Addo that had already been leased to someone else. Royal Kingdom Estate Limited was one of the buyers they sold it to, not the accused (Ghanaian Times, 13 Aug 2024). Because your website doesn't say so, AI tells the story without you. ChatGPT never mentions your 45 five-star reviews.

Without web search, ChatGPT doesn't recognise you at all: "'Royal Kingdom Estate' isn't specific enough to identify reliably—there may be multiple businesses with similar names." A similarly named firm, "Elite Kingdom", has fraud reports online, which makes clear signals about who you are even more important.

WHO GETS THE SHORTLIST

When buyers ask who to trust, AI names your competitors

We asked three questions buyers abroad ask ("Which developers in Accra would you recommend for Ghanaians abroad?", "Where can I safely buy litigation-free land near Accra from the US?", "Compare the most trusted developers in Accra") ten times across ChatGPT and Gemini, with and without web search.

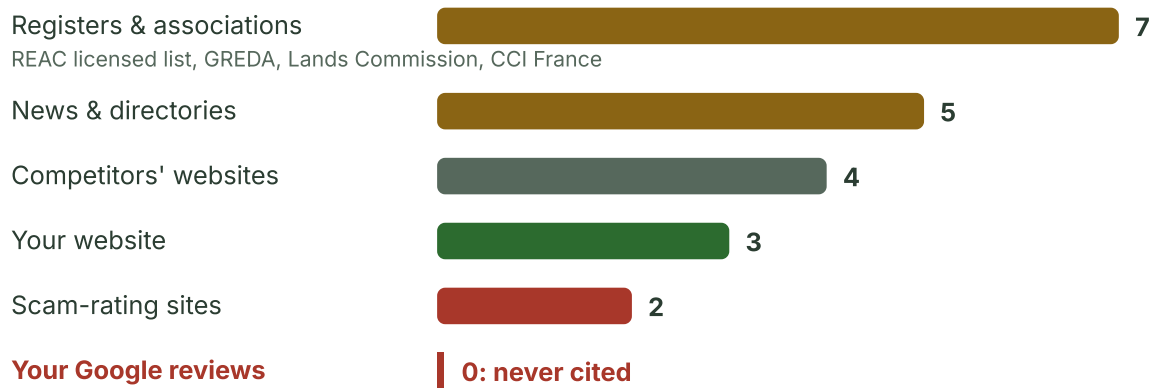

Times each business was recommended in ChatGPT's answers (6 answers).
Gemini's 4 answers also did not name Royal Kingdom. OpenRouter, 30 Sep 2026.

WHERE AI GETS ITS ANSWERS

AI quotes registers and news, not your reviews

Every source ChatGPT cited, grouped by how much you can influence it. This is your to-do list: the places AI trusts are the places to be.

QUICK WINS

Six things you can fix this week

1 Change your Google category

From "Industrial real estate agency" to a residential real estate developer category, so you show up in the searches your buyers make.

10 minutes

Found in more searches

2 Redirect your old address

Re-register royalkingdomstategh.com and point it to your current site, so the Google result that still lists it stops showing an error.

1 hour

Stop losing clicks

3 Add a WhatsApp button

On every project page. Buyers abroad expect to message, not fill a form and wait.

1 hour

More enquiries

4 Tell machines who you are

Add business schema linking your website, Google profile, LinkedIn and Instagram, plus a real page description, so AI can tell Royal Kingdom apart from similar names.

Half a day

AI recognises you

5 Publish your side of 2024

A short, factual page: you were one of the buyers wronged in the Tse Addo resale case, what happened next, and how you verify land now.

1 day

Changes what AI says

6 Ask every buyer for a review

At document handover, send every buyer, happy or not, a one-tap Google review link. No gifts and no filtering: that's Google's rule, and it's why reviews count.

Ongoing

Proof AI can quote

THE PLAN

Thirty days to change what buyers find

1

Week 1: Basics

Google category, old-address redirect, WhatsApp button, business schema, matching addresses everywhere.

2

Week 2: Answer pages

Payment plans, documents and title, how you verify land, and the 2024 case in your words.

3

Week 3: Reviews

Every buyer asked at handover; a reply to every review within 48 hours.

4

Week 4: Measure

We ask AI the same buyer questions again and show you what changed.

HOW WE CHECKED

1. Google Maps business profile for Royal Kingdom Estate Ltd, 30 Sep 2026 (totals, star breakdown, category, top reviews).
2. Web searches for "Royal Kingdom Estate" with reviews, scam, complaint, Trustpilot and Reddit, 29–30 Sep 2026.
3. Buyer questions put to ChatGPT (gpt-5.6) and Gemini (3.8 Flash) through OpenRouter, from memory and with web search, 30 Sep 2026. AI answers vary; this is a snapshot.
4. A review of royalkingdomestate.com: home, land, apartments, project and contact pages, 29 Sep 2026.
5. Court report: "3 in court over double sale of land at Tse Addo", Ghanaian Times, 13 Aug 2024.

We don't buy, write or filter reviews. Everything above comes from public sources, and we've kept no personal data.
